"Did you ever see that gentleman before?" asked Mr. Jerome of the witness. Mrs. Thaw looked at the doctor and hesi-tated a moment

"No." she said.

"Quite sure?" "I am quite sure I never saw him before." responded the witness with growing cer-

Did you ever go to that gentleman for medical treatment?" insisted the District attorney.

"No. sir " persisted the witness.

"Dld you not go with Jack Barrymore to this Dr. Cariton Flint's office, to his house in New York city?" "No, sir." snapped the witness; de-flantly. Mr. Jerome gave it up and Dr. Flint retired.

Her Husband Rational, She Says.

Mr. Jerome inquired many times in the course of the day if Mr. Thaw appeared rational or irrational at certain times The witness invariably answered that. her husband appeared to her to be rational at these times. It was inferred that the District Attorney was trying to assemble material to show that the mental disturbance Thaw exhibited all through this period was that of a jealous lover rather than that of a man of unsound mind.

The District Attorney manifested a good deal of interest in the various operations to which the witness had submitted and insisted on getting her to state positively that the operation performed upon her while she was at school at Pompton was not of a criminal nature. He asked again about the letter of credit she had from White when she made her first European tour, part of the time with her mother and Thaw, and the rest of the time with Thaw alone. She declared that Thaw got very angry when he heard about the $400 letter of credit, and declared that the money was filthy and "poisonous," and that she must never again touch a cent of the architect's money. White, she said, did not know at first that Thaw was paying the expense of that trip abroad, her mother having told him that a friend" was paying for it.

Stories They Told Her Against Thaw. She insisted that she and Thaw always travelled under their real names abroad and had never been known as "Mr. and Mrs. Dellis." She admitted that she and the defendant had lived together as man and wife in this country and in Europe in 1904. Mr. Jerome insisted on hearing the stories told her by Mr. White and others against Thaw. One was the charge that he used morphine. Another was a tale about his having tied a girl to a bedpost while he beat her, and still another about his having poured hot water on a girl in a gestion. This was the letter: bathtub. She believed these yarns at first, ut later found out that they were not

She said it was true that after she met Thaw at a dinner at Rector's late in 1901 or early in 1902 he sent her some flowers with some money, but she added that she had returned the money and that Thaw had apologized for sending it.

Court Usually With Delmas.

Mr. Jerome was frequently interrupted in his task of tracing the life that Miss Nesbit led with Harry Thaw by objections. by Mr. Delmas. Justice FitzGerald almost invariably sided with counsel for the defence. Occasionally, too, the District Attorney paused for some minutes while he hunted up some document or refreshed his memory from notes, as if he were running short of ammunition. It was therefore not surprising when he announced that he was nearly through with the witness. This does not mean necessarily that Mrs. Harry Thaw will have only a brief time more upon the stand. Doubtless Mr. Delmas will have some more questions for her, based on the cross-examination, which may remind the District Attorney- of something: he has overlooked.

Both the witness and her husband seemed to be much refreshed by the three day rest they had enjoyed since last Thursday. Harry Thaw seemed in excellent spirits and never appeared worried by the questions Mr. Jerome asked his wife She, on her part, while not looking quite as youthful as when she took the stand for the first time, appeared to be growing more confident and self-contained. Once or twice she ventured to give Mr Jerome a sly dig

SENSATION HUNTERS OUT EARLY.

Mrs. Thaw Questioned at Length About Her Husband's Irrationality. There had been talk of Mr. Jerome springing a sensation at yesterday's session and the crowd came early, hoping to hear it. But the court officers, following the rule, allowed no one inside of the police lines who didn't have business there. Enough were let in, however, to crowd the court

REAL ESTATE. Attends to all matters in connection with real property. Inquire

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK

Capital. 3,000,000 Surplus and Profits. 10,500,000 Interest allowed on daily below subject to check.

Fifteen Nessey Street

Thaw was called to the stand. Her costume was the same as usual, but her face was a little paler. At that she showed much improvement over last Friday, when she called on her husband in the Tombs.

Before she came to New York from Philadelphia, she told Mr. Jerome, she lived at Allegheny. She denied that she had ever left her home there for a time with a girl friend and as a result had trouble with her

The best she could remember of the time when White opened an account for her at the New Amsterdam Bank was that it was about a month or two after she said she had been drugged by White. Again the name of Frances Belmont was brought in by Mr. Jerome, who wanted to know when the witness first met her. She said it was while she was in the "Florodora" company and before she met White. She never went to suppers with Frances Belmont before she met White, but after that

"Did you not go to a supper with a man whose name I will now mention to you?" asked Mr. Jerome, whispering a name to the witness. Mr. Jerome did that a number of times. He seemed to have a list of the names of every man she ever dined, supped or had function with. Several times she smiled at Mr. Jerome and apparently wanted to be on good terms with him. In fact when she went on the stand she smiled at somebody, but it was a question whether the smile was for Mr. Jerome or her husband, who was in a line behind Mr. Jerome. She went to suppers at which that particular man was, but she didn't go with him and she didn't know whether he gave the suppers or not. Mr. Jerome whispered another name and she said she had gone to suppers with him. One of the men took her home once and the other took her home twice, but each time, she carefully explained, there were other girls with her. None of those girls was Frances Belmont. Mr. Jerome's interest in Frances Belmont could not be stopped, he brought

Mr. Jerome asked about the night of February 22, 1902, the night the Seventyfirst Regiment Armory burned. She went to supper that night.

With a man whose name I shall now mention to you?" asked Mr. Jerome. He had the wrong name, she told him, and she gave him the right one. She said it was not true that she had an attack of bronchitis that night and White told her she shouldn't go, to the supper. She was living at the Audubon Hotel and not at the Wellington at that time, as Mr. Jerome thought. She was on friendly terms with rances Belmont then.

Mr. Jerome brought in a new name, one Angela Vincent. The witness said

Letter From White About Her Vacation. Mr Jerome showed her a letter which she said was in Stanford White's handwriting. Mr. Jerome wanted to examine her about the contents of the letter, but Mr. Delmas, who had been quiet up to that time, insisted that it be put in evidence Mr. Jerome promptly followed the sug-

DEAR HART: Will you have Mrs. Nesbit ou know when Miss Evelyn decides to go on her vacation and then send the following note to the Mercantile Trust

"DEAR SIR: Please notify Miss Nesbit that on receiving word from her that she is about to leave on her vacation they will send her weekly check for $25 and a further check of $200 on application. Yours truly. "STANFORD WHITE."

Mr. Jerome was trying to get her to fix the date when she went to "The Wild Rose" company, but the best she would say was that it was in the early part of 1902. Mr. Jerome also wanted to find out when she left the Audubon Hotel and went to the Wellington. Her memory was very hazy, and he produced nine checks on the New Amsterdam Bank. The first check was dated February 1, 1902, The checks were signed by herself and her mother, and they were made payable to Edgar Close, the proprietor of the Audubon Hotel. The body of some of the checks was written by her mother and others by herself. They were for sums varying from $25 to $63. It was a joint account for mother and daughter which Stanford White had established. Still she was unable to tell when she left the Audubon and went to the Wellington. After questioning her about other checks she finally came to the conclusion that she must have gone to the Wellington about April 17, 1902. She remained at the Wellington until she went to school at Pompton in the autumn.

Met Thaw First at a Dinner.

The first time she met Thaw was at a dinner he gave at Rector's in December. 1901, or the following January. Her mother wasn't there, nor was Frances Belmont He was calm and placid at that time and she didn't notice anything queer about him. She smiled when Mr. Jerome asked if Thaw knew how to count money and make change. She said he did.

She stayed at Rector's for a little over an hour and then she went to tell her mother where she had been before going to the theatre that evening. A few weeks after that Thaw called on her at the Audubon. She didn't remember what they talked about, but he was rational enough. Up to that time he hadn't made any presents to her except some flowers and some candy. Mr. Jerome was apparently fishing for something and he got down to it. Q. Had he sent you flowers prior to the

Q. Were they sent in the ordinary way? A. How do you mean?

Well was there anything about them

Without any preliminaries young Mrs. that necessitated comment mon the part of

Correct Arras for Man

Winter Overcoats, $12, $18, $22 and $30-prices which represent a reduction of 25% to 40%—all of them stylish you and your mother? A. Nothing, except they were very beautiful Thaw Sent Money With Flowers.

Broadway Cor. 26 x 9

The flowers were American Beauties. She thought it very likely that after receiving the flowers she had written a note to Thaw. She said she couldn't understand what Mr. Jerome meant when he asked if there was anything enclosed in stand what Mr. Jerome meant when he asked if there was anything enclosed in the note, but at the next question she admitted once having received money from Thaw with flowers. She couldn't remember if it was at this particular time, because it didn't make any great impression on her. She said she hadn't been in the habit of receiving meners from rase hut all on her. She said she hadn't been in the habit of receiving money from men, but all she could remember about this particular instance was that the money came to her with the flowers. She couldn't remember, although Mr. Jerome did his best to refresh her recollection, whether it was before her recollection, whether it was before or after Thaw called on her at her mother's

Q. Did it strike you as a perfectly natural and normal thing to receive money from a gentleman? A Well, it was often done the theatre, I knew that; I saw it going on all the time, other girls receiving presents money and flowers.

Q. Was it the first time that you had reeived money in that way? A. Yes. Q. You were surprised at receiving the noney? A. Yes, I was surprised. Q: How well did you know him? "A. Well, didn't ever get to know him well until afterward. Her mother didn't make her sen money back. It was $50. She said she sent it back herself, Thaw kept calling on her after that. The next time he came she told him "Please not to do it again," and he apologized. She didn't think there was any impropriety in receiving him again after he had sent her the money. He promised that he would never do it again.

After that she went to suppers and the theatre with him. Once she went to a supper at the Hoffman House, where the women went in costume, but Thaw was not there. She told Mr. Jerome who gave the supper. She didn't have any photographs of herself that night because she wore a hired gown. Edna Goodrich and rances Belmont were not there. It was bout 2:30 o'clock in the morning when he supper was over.

Asks About the Ethel Thomas Affidavit. She couldn't remember how often she went to supper with Thaw at that period. Once she and her mother went to Thaw's apartments in Fifth avenue and had dinner. Suddenly Mr. Jerome showed her the signature to an affidavit. She said that in Abe Hummel's office a paper with a nan signed to it had been shown to her. The was the name, but she couldn't say it was same signature. It turned out to the affidavit which Ethel Thomas is said to have made in a suit brought against Thaw in which she charged him with beat-ng and otherwise ill treating her. In all the times she met Thaw up to the time she went to school at Pompton she saw nothing strangeabout his behavior or his actions. Mr. Jerome was satisfied with that and suddenly asked her about her acquaintanceship with Jack Barrymore, the actor. The first time she met him was in White's studio at a dinner. That was in the summer of 1902. She frequently went to supper with him, sometimes alone. O. Did you go with Jack Barrymore to

Q. Do you remember that you did not? I do not remember.

Up to February, 1902, Barrymore had not proposed marriage to her.

"Was he more intimate with you than a number of other persons?" Mr. Jerome asked her.

"What do you mean?" she asked in a sur-Mr. Jerome explained that he meant that his attentions were simply those of a gentle-man to a woman. She said he was nice and polite at all times.

Q. I mean there was no marked attention was he paying you any different kind of attention than any other gentlemen whom you had reason to believe were decent men. were paying you? A. No.

Questions About George Lederer.

Mr. Jerome dropped Barrymore and asked her about her arrival from Europe on October 24, 1903. She couldn't remember what time the boat got in, although Mr. Jerome was of the opinion that it was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. She did not teleptione to George Lederer from the dock. She was sure of that. Neither did she go to Lederer's office and telephone to White early part of 1902. She went to his office with a letter from Ted Marks and as a ult of that she got a job in "The Wild se" company. She went to Philadelphia with the company and her mother went with her. When the company came back she went to supper with George Lederer and others. Once she went with him to Rector's alone. It was not in the upstairs dining room, she said, unless there were others there. She was sure of that. She hought she went to supper with Lederer about ten times, and often her mother went with her.

In a series of questions that followed Dr. Calton Flint, Jack Barrymore, White and Lederer were all jumbled uptogether. She told Mr. Jerome that she had never appropriate the property of the p seen Dr. Flint. Then he wanted to know if White objected to her going around with Barrymore. She said he did and practically repeated the story she told on direct examination when she said that White said they were "two foolish kids," that they had no money to live on and that they could never get along. At that time Barry. more had proposed marriage. Her mother told White about it after she had told her mother. Her mother was very angry. The only trouble she ever had with her mother about Barrymore, she said, was about marrying him. Mr. Jerome wanted her to be sure on that point and she said

The last time she had seen Barrymore was when she called on his sister in Pitts-burg. That was some time in 1906. Before that she badn't seen him in a long time. Suddenly Assistant District Attorney van came into the court room and spoke to Mr. Jerome. Mr. Jerome turned around and looked at the door where the witnesses Confrented With Dr. Flint. "Call Dr. Flint," said Mr. Jerome quietly. A man about 40 years old, with brown hair and mustache, walked into the court room in a hesitating manner. Mr. Jerome told him to walk behind the jury box and up close to the witness chair, where there was more . Mrs. Thaw seemed to be just a bit itened. She looked at the doctor, and he took a full, square look at her.

"You are Dr. Flint?" said Mr. Jerome. I am," he replied. "Did you ever see that gentleman before?" asked Mr. Jerome in a stern manner. Some of those in the back of the court room had o stand up to rubber until the court officers made them sit down. "No," she said, with just a little shake her voice. "Are you sure?" demanded Mr. Jerome.

"I am quite sure I never saw him before," she replied, with more strength to her voice and a more positive manner.

"Did you ever go to this gentleman for medical treatment with Jack Barrymore?" continued Mr. Jerome.
"No, sir," she said, emphasizing each Barrymore's attentions, she said, continued up to the time she went to school at Pompton. She couldn't remember going to a house in West Thirty-fifth street with Barrymore. Mr. Jerome gave the number, but she said she never heard of it before. It might has shon every self him. before. It might be a shop, or any old thing, she didn't know.

She never went to a hotel called the Odeon, she said.

"Sure?" insisted Mr. Jerome.
"Sure," she replied very decidedly.
She never went to the Cafe des Ambassaeurs in this city. She didn't even know where it was. "Did you ever go with Barrymore and remain away all night from home?" Mr.

No, sir," she said. Q. Didn't you one night go out with Barry more and remain all night away from home and send a telegram to your mother? A When you say all night, I never remember being out all night with Mr. Barrymore. I have been out to supper with him, I told you. Q. Did you not go out one night with Barrymore after the play and that night you did not return home but sent a telegram to your mother stating that you were stopping with a certain person? A. No. Q. A person other than Barrymore? A

No. I do not remember that I ever did. Mr. Jerome wanted to know if Stanford White ever endeavored to get her to make a complaint against Barrymore. Mr. Del-mas was on his feet with an objection. "If it should appear," said Mr. Jerome, "that White was seeking to have Barrymore arrested and she knew it it might have a arrested and she knew it it might have a very important bearing on the statements which she has just made."

"The attack of Stanford White," replied Mr. Delmas, "on that subject might be explained on the ordinary ground of rivalry and jealousy of an older man toward a younger suitor." "I sustain the objection," said Justice FitzGerald.

White sent her to Pompton school to get her away from Barrymore, she said. She was willing to go and stayed there until 1903. Mr. Jerome then referred to the testimony of Mrs. Caine, who said she was in a bathroom when Thaw offered to settle money on Mrs. Nesbit and her son if she would help him win Evelyn's hand. According to Mrs. Caine Mrs. Nesbit called up her daughter on the telephone at the school and Thaw spoke to the girl. The witness couldn't remember any such telephone message. rhaw spoke to the girl. The witness couldn't remember any such telephone message yesterday. Her mother frequently called her up, though. She never heard anything about Mrs. Caine's story until Mrs. Caine told it in Mr. Delmas's office.

A Clash of Counsel.

Mr. Jerome reverted to the operation that was performed on her at Pompton. He asked how Thaw came to see her at that time and Mr. Delmas inquired if the District Attorney meant what kind of a vehicle he "Do you think I mean that?" asked Mr.

"You might," said Mr. Delmas. "The amount of intelligence you display ometimes, Mr. Delmas," said Mr. Jerome; is almost human."

"And the amount of intelligence you display is almost superhuman," said Mr. Delmas with a smile.

Thaw, she said, was told by her mother that she was about to be operated on and he called to see her.

"Prior to the time he came to Pompton he was not paying you any court, honorable court, as described in the hypothetical question?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Welk, I don't know whether you would call it court or not," she said. "He was call it court or not," she said. "He was paying me attention—sent me flowers and candy, but he had not proposed to me I didn't know he would have any such was ill, she said, and they had told her that they were going to find out what was the matter with her. They were going to put her under ether and when Thaw called he was not allowed to speak to her and she was not allowed to speak to him.

"When Mr. Thaw came in he drew the curtains aside," she said, "and put his finger up to his mouth like this."

She indicated how he did it. He didn't say anything and she didn't say anything.
"But he came in." she added, "and knelt down beside the bed and kissed my hand. got up and went out

She had seen Thaw several times before that, when she came from the school for week ends. Mr. Jerome whispered a name to her and then asked her if she knew him. She said she did not.

"You generally understand what is mean."

by a person when he asks if a gentleman s paying court to a lady, don't you?" said

"Do you mean if he has matrimonial in-tentions?" she asked in a puzzled way. tentions?" she asked in a puzzled way.

Mr. Jerome asked some more questions along this line, only to turn again to the subject of the operation. She said she was told that it was an operation for appendicitis. At this point Mr. Jerome got a little angry. He wanted Mr. Delmas to concede that it was an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Delmas wouldn't concede anything. Mr. Jerome thereupon said that he was forced into it and asked a series of questions, the result of which was to show that the operation was not of a criminal nature. The witness answered the questions on this score foreibly and positively.

forcibly and positively.

It was some time after she had been in the hospital in this city, having been re-moved from the school, that Thaw proposed that she and her mother go abroad had spoken to White about going abroad. "He said he did not want me to go abroad." she explained. "He said he thought I ought to go to the country."

"Didn't he say you could have a trip own the coast?" Mr. Jerome asked. "No, he did not," she replied.

Q. Didn't he inform you that at that tin he was financially embarrassed? A. I don't remember. All I remember him saying to me about it was that I could go to the country. As far as down the coast was concerned I cannot say, but he did say to thought it would be a good thing for me to go to the country. I think he said to the

Her mother told White that she was going to Europe. At the same time her mother told her not to tell White. "She told you not to tell Mr. White that Thaw was putting up the money for you to go abroad?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Yes," she replied, rather indistinctly.
"And yet you received the letter of credit for £80 from Mr. White?" presisted Mr.

Jerome.

"Well, I didn't know it until after we had sailed," she replied. "He gave me something and covered it up, and told me not to look at it until I got away."

"Then you found it—this letter of credit after you got away?" said Mr. Jerome. after you got away?" said Mr. Jerome.
"I did," she replied.

How White's Letter of Credit Went. Q. Did you use any of it? A. My mother

Q. Did you use any of it? A. I used it for Q. Where was your mother when you used it for her? A. In Boulogne and in Paris-1 am not sure about Paris, but I remember distinctly about it in Boulogne. Q. Your mother used all of it? A. Yes. Q. Quite sure about that? A. Yes.,

Quite sure that there wasn't about $200 still undrawn, and that in that shape it turned over to this defendant, Thaw? A. He ouldn't use it -it was given to my mother. Wasn't a letter written to you by White while you were in Paris? A. Yes, he told me to keep it (the letter of credit) as long as my mother hadn't spent it.

Mr. Jerome took her over her trip abroad, Mr. Jerome took her over her trip abroad, following practically the same ground she had already testified about. She told about going from Paris to Boulogne and back. Thaw was then in London. He wrote her letters, but she couldn't remember what had become of them. The trip about the Continent she described again.

"Who are Mr. and Mrs. Dellis?" asked

"Who are Mr. and Mrs. Dellis?" asked Mr. Jerome, suddenly.
She didn't know. Mr. Delmas had Dellis spelled. That didn't help her. She had never heard of the name before.
"Were you and Thaw not travelling under that name?" asked Mr. Jerome.
"We were not," she said.
He got her to describe the schloss they hired in Germany. It was an old building and they only had part of it. Mr. Jerome asked her about some jewelry she had then, asked her about some jewelry she had then, a diamond ring, a ring with a sapphire and other things. She was answering the questions, innocently enough, when Mr Delmas objected that the questions wer

Everything Protection

You need not be an acrobat to use the Wilson Fire Escape. Conpact, strong, simple, sare. Used by the N. Y. Fire Dept. $5, $8, $12. complete. Write for booklet. S. F. HAYWARD & CO. 20 Warren St., New York Phila. and Pittsburg.

outside of the bounds of cross-examina-"Objection sustained," said Justice Fitz-

A Lover's Anger, Not Insanity. Before she told the story about White to Thaw she had been in Paris several weeks This was before they started across the Continent. In that time she had noticed nothing irrational about Thaw. When she old the story to Thaw they sat up all night. Q. During its narration did he evince by anguage or appearance any irrationality?

A. Well, he got terribly excited. I don't know whether you would call that irralonality or not. O. Well, did it strike you as the excitement of a person hearing a fearful story about one he loved, or was it, in your opinion, the con-duct of an insane man? A. No, it wasn't he conduct of an insane man at all. Q. Then am I correct in saving that it was he conduct, or seemed to you to be the con duct, of a man outraged by a story of wrong bout one whom he loved? A. Yes.

At that time they had an apartment Her mother was in a room in the apartment. Q. And where in Paris did Thaw live at that time? A. He lived there.

Q. In the same apartment? A. Yes. Mr. Jerome wanted to know why she rejected Thaw's proposals of marriage She said:

"Because I thought it would not be a good thing for him; because I thought I could go back to the stage, and that if some time or other he met somebody and his family wanted him to marry her he would be perfectly free to do so, and I was not going to reverent it. Under the circular the circ not going to prevent it. Under the cir-cumstancess I did not think it would be ight."

She paused for a second or so, adding in lovelorn way, "I wanted to marry him."
After that Thaw talked a good deal about White and the story. That was the only sign that he was irrational. "He talked sign that he was irrational. "He talked too much," she said. His ideas tumbled over one another, as Mr. Jerome expressed it, but Thaw was always a fast talker, she said. "He talked faster than I do," was er way of putting it. Having put her on record on Thaw's rationality at that time, Mr. Jerome jumped back to the White letter of credit. "That letter of credit was in your name?" Jerome.

"What did Thaw say about that?"

"He said the money was filthy and coisoned," she replied, shaking her head, and that I ought not to have touched it; and he went and asked mamma why she had let me touch it. She told him that was my money."

The more Thaw talked about White the more he became excited. She remem-bered one time when they were at a hotel in Pairs. Thaw found out, she said, that Mrs. Nesbit had spent most of the letter f credit.
"Then he was very much excited," said the witness. "He told me that I must never touch another penny of it; that it was poisoned and filthy, and that she must take it and keep it so I couldn't get hold of again; that he would give me whatever wanted, and that if mamma wanted anying she should come and ask

There was nothing about him then that pressed her that he was of unsound mind. e was excited, but he acted like a man ho had adequate cause for being excited "He struck you, then," said Mr. Jerome as a man who had adequate cause for citement or an insane man?"
"Oh, I don't think he was insane at all, she replied. "I didn't have any idea that he was insane."

Q. During all this time he professed an rable love for you? A. Yes Q. And a desire to make you his wife? A He said I was unfortunate, and he thought just as much of me as if it hadn't happened. But he was pressing you all the time to be his wife? A. Yes; he was. Q. And you had become at this time dislusioned on this subject of all women being inchaste? I mean this: you loved this man so truly that during this whole European travel when you became better acquainted you were refusing his offers of marriage simply because of your great love for him? A. Yes, sir,

The Trouble With the Embassy:

Mr. Jerome then took up the trouble mother had with a representative of American Embassy in London, which was referred to last week. The man was was reterred to last week. The man was a secretary of the embassy, she said.

"He was making trouble," she added.

"He sneaked up into my mother's room, where she was lying down, and talked to

The talk had nothing to do with her travelling about the country with Thaw. "It was not an endeavor," asked Mr. Frome, "to have the American Embassy interfere and have you and Thaw brough

"It was not," she said. "It was an endeavor to get me to go on the stage in

Q. Now, when you went back to Paris what was the misunderstanding or trouble that led to these cablegrams, the contents of which could not recollect? A. Because this man had been going to see my mother in ondon, but he had insulted me frightfully in London, and I did not want my mother to have anything to do with him. Mr, Thaw tried his best to prevent it. Q. What did Mr. White have to do with it? Because Mr. White was a friend of this

Q. And who prepared the cables? A. Mr. Thaw.

Q. In whose name? A. I don't know. don't remember the cables. I remember one cable. It had something in it about this man Q. That is Mr. Thaw prepared a cable, the purpose of which was that it was to be sent to Stanford White for the purpose of having Stanford White stop this man in London, connected with the American embassy, from an-noving your mother? A. As I remember it; I do not remember exactly the words of the Thaw wasn't present when this American representative insulted her in London. Thaw told her not to have anything more to do with this man. Mr. Jerome wapted to know if Thaw didn't carry a revolver at that time, but she didn't see Thaw with a revolver until after Christmas Eve. 1903. a year later. She never saw him draw pistol in Paris. Mr. Jerome questione her about leaving Thaw in Paris for two nights and going to some other place, but she said that wasn't so. She told him about her continued relations with White after the night she says she was drugged and he would have crying spells. Some-times he would wake her up in the night. But she didn't notice any abnormal mental condition about him. Asked about some needles she said she had found in Paris, in the apartments they had, she said they looked like darning needles to her, but she did not know that they were the kind of needles that were used for hypodermic injections. Mr. Jerome inquired if Thaw didn't too much in Paris, and she said "only at For most of the morning session Mr Jerome used the statement made by the witness's mother to examine her. Nothing in the statement worried the witness much had a ready answer for all of Mr. Jerome's questions.

MRS. THAW'S ORDEAL ENDING. Vehiment Denial That She Told That Than Treated Her Cruelly.

Mr. Jerome's first queries after luncheon we re about the letter of credit from Stanford White that Miss Nesbit took to Europe when she and her mother went there with Thaw in the spring of 1903. Thaw told her, the witness said, to put it away and not to touch it again.

Then Mr. Jerome jumped the Atlantic again, arriving in New York when Miss Nesbit came back in the fall of 1903. The witness said she went first to the Savoy, then to the Navarre, and later to the Audubon. At these places she paid her bills with money that Mr. Thaw had given her. She had this money, about $1,000 of it, in cash. Most of this time she believed the stories that White and other people had told her about Thaw, even though

ORCHESTRELLE

"The Home Orchestra"

Even with two different companies giving Opera this year, the opportunity to hear your favorites will not occur often.

If you owned an Orchestrelle with its wonderful variety of orchestral tones and complete power of orchestration, you could play and enjoy any Opera you chose, whenever you liked during the whole year.

Splendid bargains in Orchestrelles can now be obtained in the stock of discontinued styles at Aeolian Hall

The Aeolian Co., Acolian Hall, 362 Fifth Ave.,

"And while you were living at the Sayoy." sked Mr. Jerome, "did you never receive any presents from Stanford White?" The witness said she didn't, and when Mr. Jerome asked particularly about some furs and a white chinchilla muff, she said she didn't think Mr. White had given her any such things. Mr. White didn't ask her whether her mother had been with her when she and Thaw were travelling about Europe. "He knew much more about mamma than I did," she explained. "He told me he saw mamma when she came home from Europe. The District Attorney then wanted to know something about Miss Simonson, with whom Mrs. Holman returned from Europe after she had quarrelled with her

"Mr. White said he turned cold," answered the witness, "and said he could manage a dozen mammas, but was afraid Simonson woman Mr. Jerome wanted to know if Mrs. Thaw wasn't told that her mother and Miss Simonson went to Mr. White's office and told him the story the witness had told about her relations with White, and that White said: "My wife on one side and my son on the other, and may God strike me dead if I ever harmed her." Mr. Jerome then read om one of the Thaw letters Her mother don't count for much, for think Evelyn and I can tell the brother enough for him to keep the foolish woman in her tracks. Miss Simonson is a thief and a trickster. She is cheeky, but actually a coward

She can be squelched at any time, but only by a firm grip. So far as she has any feeling it is for us. Also, I think she expects much more use from us from the biackguards. blackmailing them and is discouraged The District Attorney asked if that was the same Miss Simonson, but the Court wouldn't allow the query. Thaw paid her mother's passage back to this country, the

At White's Parties in 1903.

Mr. Jerome switched to the subject of parties in the Madison Square Garden tower. Mrs. Thaw said she went there occasionally in the fall of 1903, but only when she was told by White that there were to be other people there. She said that he had at-tempted improprieties with her at that me.

"And after he had been guilty of what term improprieties," demanded Mr. you term improprieties," demanded Mr. Jerome, "you took his word as good enough to induce you to go to the tower alone to meet people there, and you did not know whether they would be there or not?"

The witness said that was correct. Mr. Jerome asked who had been living at the Navarre with the witness a than that. She said it was a girl named Angela Vincent. There followed a long list of questions about various dinners and suppers which Miss Nesbit had attended and suppers which Miss Nesbit had attended about that time. She told where they were and whispered to Mr. Jerome the names of the people who were present. There followed a flareup between the District Attorney and Mr. Delmas that seemed for a moment to promise some sensational developments. Mr. Jerome had asked if any of the stories Mr. White told her about Thaw involved acts of perversion "If your Honor please," said Mr. Delmas, getting up hastily. Mr Jerome seemed to leap to the conclusion that his question was to be objected to on the ground that it was too indefinite and interrupted angrily: "Have I got to go into all the filth and rotten details of these things?"

"I think you have brought out sufficient

"I think you have brought out sufficient rottenness," replied Mr. Delmas acidly, and then he added: "If the learned District Attorney has any acts that he desire characterize let him describe them. shall not describe them for him."

Whatever may have been the original intention of the District Attorney he apparently abandoned it and asked shortly: What They Told Her About Thaw

*Did Stanford White tell you anything about Ethel Thomas? Mrs. Thaw said he didn't, but that Abe Hummel did. Q. What stories did Stanford White tell you about Harry K. Thaw during the period you were at the Savoy and the Navarre A. He first told me that Harry Thaw was a morphine flend—that he took morphine—and I said I did not believe it. He said he could prove it. I said that was very funny. because if he were a morphine flend I should surely have known it, for I would have seen him taking morphine. He said that I did not you could snuff it up your nose and jab it in your arm. I never saw Mr. Thaw jab anything in his arm. Q. Have you ever seen him take cocaine?

know what I was talking about that there were a lot of ways of taking morphine that

Q. Did you not tell Abraham Hummel GRAPE-NUTS.

A FRIEND'S TIP 70-Year-Old Man Not too Old to Accept Food Pointer.

"For the last 20 years," writes a Maine man, "I've been troubled with Dyspepsia and liver complaint, and have tried about every known remedy without much in the way of results until I took up the food

"A friend recommended Grape-Nuts food, after I had taken all sorts of medicines with only occasional, temporary relief.

"This was about nine months ago, and I began the Grape-Nuts for breakfast with cream and a little sugar. Since then I have had the food for at least one meal a day, usually for breakfast. Words fail to express the benefit I received from the use of Grape-Nuts. My stomach is almost entirely free from pain and my liver complaint is about cured, I have gained flesh, sleep well, can eat nearly any kind of food except greasy, starchy things and am strong and healthy at the age of 70 years.

"If I can be the means of helping any poor mortal who has been troubled with dyspepsia as I have been, I am willing to answer any letter enclosing stamp." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellshe was living on his money at the time. | ville," in pags. "Tibre's a Reason."

A SUPERIOR DRESS SHIRT

In appearance and fit the equal of the production of the free from grit and acid. Prevents accumulation of tartar. Will not injure the enamel of the teeth. Ask your dentist.

CLUETT, PEABODY & CO.,

EWARE OF SUBSTITUTION. Carbonic, Artificial Vichy, Selters, CLUB SODA and GINGER ALE.

CARL H. SCHULTZ.

Tel. 3420 Madison Sq. 480-444 1st Av., N. Y. MOUR PUR THE LABEL.

hat you saw him take cocaine frequently? Q. Did you not tell Hummel that he tried to administer some to you? A. I did not. Q. What were these other stories that Mr White told you about Mr. Thaw? A. He told me he had a habit of tying women to bedposts and whipping them, and he and this other man told me stories I have already testified about-the bathtub story. Another man told me he had been in a hotel and had heard screams and he burst in the door and saw

Continued on Third Page.

Harry Thaw in this room and that there was woman tied to the bedpost and Harry Than DIED. BOWNE. Saturday, Feb. 28, Effe, daughter of Walter and Ida S. Bowne. Funeral services will be held at the residence of her parents, 688 Park av., Tuesday morning, Feb. 26, at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

BURNET.-Suddenly at his residence. Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 23, 1907, Charles Clark Burnet. Funeral private. COOPER, Saturday, Feb. 23, of pneumonia, Edward C. Cooper, 36 years of age. Services at his late residence, 312 West 99th st., on Tuesday, Feb. 26, at 11 o'clock A. M. Interment at the convenience of the family. Chicago papers please copy DICKINSON.-On Sunday, Feb. 24, 1907, at 15 Clinton av.. New Brighton, Staten Island, Walter, infant son of Walter and Cornella

Dickinson.

Funeral private.

DUNN .- On Monday, Feb. 25, Catharine Freeland Dunn, daughter of the late Matthew S. and Mary Freeland Dunn. Funeral services at her late residence. 335 West 51st st., on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. HURLBUT .- On Monday: Feb. 25, Martha Sampson, wife of Frank Moseley Hurlbut,

Funeral services will be held at her late residence 36 Madison av., Morristown, N. J., on Wednes day, Feb. 27, at 3:30 P. M. Interment at com entence of family.

st., after a short tilness, Louise Henriette Leciere, in her 83d year, Funeral service, on Tuesday morning, Feb. 26, at 10 o'clock at the Eglise Evangelique Francalse, 126 West 16th at.

ACKARD.-On Monday, Feb. 25, 1907, in Sals Lake City, Elizabeth Clary, wife of Edward W, Packard and daughter of the late William Judson Blydenburgh of Smithtown, L. 1. Interment at Albany. WELLS -Of pneumonia, on Saturday, Feb. 23. at 63d year of her age Service and interment on Tuesday, the 26th inst, in Bethlehem, Pa.

city, Charlotte, wife of Arthur Wells, in the garments, carefully tailored and ready to wear.

UNDERTAKERS.

STEPHEN MERRITT BURIAL CO.